CHARLESTON.

SATURDAY MORNING, JANUARY 2, 1869.

The Savannah and Charleston Railroad Company.

The bill before the Legislature for the relief of this company proposes—first, an endorsement by the State of the company's bonds, in an amount sufficient to absorb the past due coupons, on the five hundred and five thousand dollars of bonds originally endorsed by her-which new issue shall rank under the lien then given her .- and secondly. her retirement of this lien, and her consent to another having priority over it, for the security of an issue of five hundred thousand dollars in bonds, to be used for the reconstruction of the road. We believe that this bill embodies the true and just course to be pursued. It does the State no harm: secures what the majority of her citizens desire, viz: the earliest possible reconstruction of the road; promotes the public good in the greatest degree; and, at the same time sustains and vitalizes the corporation which asks its passage.

What are the objections to it? The following are among those urged: 1st. That it asks of the State a "further contribution" in behalf of this road; 2d. That it will increase our taxes; 31. That it will swell the "contingent liabilities" of the State, and thus imperil her credit; and 4th. That it involves a breach of good faith towards the company's bondholder. The two first are met by the simple facts of the case. The bill does not ask the appropriation of a single dollar, and, consequently, there can be no increase of the public debt on its account, the interest on which would have to be provided by additional taxation. On the contrary, it looks rather to a diminution of taxation, by converting a neglected and unproductive secbill may not ask an actual appropriation. certainly would be adding to the "contin-"gent liability" of the State, and so impair her credit. We reply that it would do neither the one or the other. What already exists cannot be considered as "contingent." None will deny that the endorser upon a bond is as liable for the interest thereon as for the principal; and hence the State is, this day, as much bound to protect the accumulated interest on these bonds, which she endorsed, as the bonds themselves, whenever due. Why object to giving an expression to this liability? and placing it in a shape available to her creditor and convenient to herself. The omission to do it is far more calculated to impair her credit. But the broader ground is taken that the bill proposes to fasten upon the State the hability to pay a certain debt, when she might rid herself of it by a sale of the property; and that she is next asked to weaken her position, by accepting a second lien upon this property in lieu of a first, which she now holds, and thus render this "liability "to pay," almost a certainty. Now, all this is based upon the supposition, and, indeed, the assurances of those taking this positionthat if brought to a sale, the road would today command a sum equal to all the obligations of the State in its behalf, or say seven hundred thousand dollars. Any chance of loss is not, then, admitted by them. Now, all might agree that, let the road belong to whom it may, an assumed sum of five hundred thousand dollars is necessary to its completion. This expenditure cannot be avoided. If, then, the property was worth seven hundred thousand dollars before repair, it should unquestionably be worth one million two hundred thousand dollars after such repair; and, consequently, if the State was safe in the first case, she is not one whit the less so in the second. And here, in passing, let it be borne in mind that the principal of the debt, about which so much anxiety is manifested, is not vet due. But we are next met by the supposition that the road may be unprofitable, and may be unable to pay its interest, when the State would be compelled to interpose its aid-and it is this liability we would have her avoid. In reply, we would urge with equal, if not greater plausibility, that it will be profitable and will be able to make its interest. This is the conviction of sound, shrewd, disinterested and practical men. It must also be that of parties willing to buy the road, or else they would manifest no disposition to purchase it. We have next to consider the objection of the bondholden that the passage of this bill would be an injustice to him. We really do not see this; indeed, we are at a loss to discover in what way he is to be affected by it. We have, first, to remind him, however, of a fact of which he may be ignorant, that when the State endorsed bales, against 401,000 bales the corresponding his bond, she expressly reserved to henself period last year. Thus it appears that the the right to enact any laws she might think herself in this endorsement, the State took a mortgage of the company's property. This mortgage is directly to her, not to the bondholder. The latter can, in no way whatever, reach it-no more than any other property held by, or mortgaged to, the State. In fact, he holds nothing more than a State bond; and, the company being insolvent, his sole recourse is upon her. How she may determine to manage her assets, in order to meet his demands, is a matter for her own discretion, not his. If a course is pursue ' which is not approved by him, he may arraign the policy and wisdom of the Legislature; but he should not impugn its motives, and charge it with any breach of good faith. The fact is, he is chagrined at finding himself the holder of a bond. with (as he thinks) an "equity right" in a certain mortgage which he cannot touch, and with an endorser whom, being sovereign, he cannot sue; in other words, that he is completely "without a remedy," as both persons and property are inaccessible to him. This may be so, but it should not make him impracticable or unjust. In this case the endorser is certainly in the wrong place-he is in front of the property, instead of being behind it. To remedy this, we should not object to such an alteration in the bill, if practicable, as would make the property directly liable to him in the event of any failure to pay principal or interest, and requiring him to exhaust it before having any recourse upon the State. We think, however, that the bill provides for this contingency-in authorizing the State to take possession of the property, &c -which might be deemed sufficient.

One point more. The opponents of this bill are anxious for a sale of the road, and would invoke the aid of the Legislature to that end. They claim that its present owners, though originally bondholders, became so at very reduced prices; that they have not appropriated their private means to the completion of the road, and that they should now be swept off, and be made to give place to others who are ready to take hold of the property and restore it. The answer to all this is a brief one. We have nothing to do with the cost of this property to its present owners, the date of their purchase, or the price or currency paid for it, though, doubtless, many were interested in it before the war. It is enough for us that they now own it. They have not been, and are not now, as a body, in a condition to restore it to usefulness; and yet they are struggling to save it to themselves, as others have done, and are now doing, with their wrecked property, in the hope eventually of realizing something from it. With the assistance of the Legislature they can do this; and, furthermore, we believe that they can and will rebuild the road in a much shorter time than would be required by any other parties. This is the point which most concerns the public. They want the road, and will, we think, cheerfully endorse the men and measures securing it to them in the shortest possible time.

QUITE A STIR has been created in New York during the last week by the publication of facts in regard to the adulteration of liquors in common use. The World newspaper has been sending around to the bars of the leading hotels for samples of the liquor sold by those interated. A chemical analysis, prepared by Professor John C. Draper, shows that in most lence of the Schiedam Aromatic cases both brandy and whiskey are proved to contain large proportions of fusil oil, a dangerous poison with powerful intoxicating qualities; while there was not a single case in which the liquor had not been largely diluted with water. Professor Draper certifies that out of nine different samples of brandy, procured at the best places in New York, and paid for at from thirty to fifty cents a glass, there are but two which he pronounces genuine, and even of these he can only say they are probably real brandy. It this be the fact respecting the aristocratic drinking shops, what sort of stuff is that which is retailed in the corner grog shops to the great mass of consumers?

IN A CURRENT magazine article Horace Greeley says of the "Virtue of Persistence:" "I think the world is very generally misled by that vague term, genius. Far be it from mc to deny that some are born with loftier capacities, quicker perceptions, happier mental constitutions, than others; yet I think what is best in a human intellect is not capacity, but tendency. Of the three decidedly most gifted and brilliant young men I have known, one died in a poorhouse of delirium tremens, another sunk into an early grave, respected, but also the victim of alcoholic stimulation; the third, though hardly thirty, is to-day a vagabond and a cumberer of the ground, to whom it would be very unsafe to lend a dollar."

Schiedam Schnapps.

WHEN THE PURE MEDICINAL B TORATIV now so widely known as WOLFT: SCHNAPPS, was in roduced into the the endorsement of four thousand world under ng member of the medical profession some typerprietor was well aware that it not wholly escape the penalty attached to and usefu preparations. He, there is a feature of the t counterwith strongest possible as feature to prote it difficult and dangerous. It was submitted to distinguished chemists for analysis, and pronounced by them the purest spirit ever manufactured. Its puri ty and properties having been thus ascertained, samoles of the article were forwarded to ten thousand physicians, including all the leading practitioners in the United States, for purposes of experiment. A circular, requesting a trial of the preparation and a report of the result, accompanied each specimen. Four thousand of the most emineut medical men in the Union promptly responded. Their opinions of the article were unanimously favorable. Such a preparation, they said, had long been wanted by the profession, as no reliance could be placed on the ordinary liquors of commerce, all of which were more or less adulterated, and therefore unfit for medical purposes. The peculiar excellence and strength of the oi of juniper, which formed one of the principal ingredients of the Schnapps, together with an unalloyed character of the alcoholic element, give it, in the estimation of the faculty, a marked superiority over every other diffusive stimulant as a diuretic, tonic and restorative. These satisfactory credentials from profes men of the highest rank were published in a condensed form, and enclosed with each bottle of the Schnapps, as one of the guarantees of its genuine. news. Other precautions sgainst fraud were also adopted; a patent was obtained for the article, the autograph signature was, attached to each label and cover, his name and that of the preparation were embessed on the bottles, and the corks were scaled with his private seal. No article had ever been sold in this country under the name of Schnapps prior to the introduction of Wolfe's Schiedam Aromati Schnapps, in 1851; and the label was deposited, as his trade mark, in the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York during that

It might be supposed by persons unacquainted with the during character of the pirates who prey upon the reputation of honorable merchants by vending deleter ous trash under their name, that the protections so carefully thrown around these Schnapps would have precluded the introductions and sale of counterfeits. They seem, bowever, only to have stimulated the rapacity of impostors. The trade mark of the proprietor has been stolen; the indors ment which his Schiedam Aromatic Schnapps slone received from the medical profession has been claimed by mendacious humbugs; his labels and bottles have been imitated, his advertisements paraphrased, his circulars copied, and worse than all lishonorable retailers, after disposing of the genuing contents of his bottles, have filled them up with common gin, the most deleterious of all liquors, and thus made his name and brand a cover for poison.

The public, the medical profession and the sick, for whom the Schiedam Aromatic Schnapps is prescribed as a remedy, are equally interested with the proprietor in the detection and any ression of these nefarious practices. The genum actule, manufactured at the establishment of the undersigned in Schiedam, Holland, is distilled to a charley of the Schiedam, Holland, is distinct it finest quality, and flavored with the process unknown in any other liquor, it is treed from every a rimonious and corresive element.

Complaints have been received physicians and families in the he sale of cheap imitations of the Schiedam Aromatic Schnapps in those markets; and travellers, who are in the habit of using it ... a satidote to the baneful influence of unwalkscome river water, tes baneful influence of unwastesome river water, tes-tify that cheap gin, put up in Schiedam bottles, is trequently palmed off upon the unwary. The egents of the undersigned have been requested to astitute inquiries on the subject, and to forward to tain to be engaged in the atrocious system of deceptels for samples of the liquor sold by those in-stitutions, and nobody will be surprised to he has produced, from under the hands of the most learn that most of it proves to be badly adul- distinguished men of science in america, proofs up he has expended many thousand dollars in surrounding it with guarantees and safeguards, which ne designed should protect the public and himself against fraudulent imitations; that he has shown it o be the only liquor in the world that can be uniformly depended upon as unadulterated; that he ha hallenged investigation, analysis, comparison and experiment in all its forms; and from every ordeal he preparation which bears his name, seal and trade mark, has come off triumphant. He, therefore, feels it a duty he owes to his fellow-citizens generally, to the medical profession and the sick, to denounce and expose the charlatans who counterfeit these evidencies of identity, and he calls upon the press and the public to aid him in his efforts to remedy so great an evil. The following letters and certificates from th leading physicians and che nists of this city will prove to the reader that all goods sold by the undersigned are all that they are repre ented to be. UDOLPHO WOLFE.

I feel bound to say, that I regard your Schni I feel bound to say, that I regard your sonnapps as being in every respect pre-eminently pure, and deserving of medical patronage. At all events, it is the purest possible article of Holland Gin, hereto-tore unobtainable, and as such may be safely prescribed by physicians.

Udolfho Wolff, Fsq., Present:

Dear Sir—I have made a chemical examination of a sample of your Schiedam Schnapps, with the intent of determining if any foreign or injurious substance had been added to the simple distilled spirits.

The examination has resulted in the conclusion that the sample contained no poisonous or harmful admixture. I have been unable to discover any trace of the deletrious substances wich are employed in the adulteration of liquors. I would not heritate to use mysolf or to recommend to others, for medicinal purposes, the Schiedam Schnapps as an excellent and unobjectionable variety of gin.

UDOLPHO WOLFE, Esq.:

Dear Sir—The want of pure Wines and Liquors for medicinal purposes has been long felt by the prolession, and thousands of lives have been sacrificed by the use of adulterated articles. Delirium tramens, and other diseases of the brain and nerves, so rife in this country, are very rare in Europe, owing, in a great decree, to the difference n the purity of the spirits sold.

We have tested the several articles imported and sold by you, including your (fin, which you sell under the name of Aromatic Schiedam Schinapps, which we consider justly entitled to the high reputation it has acquired in this country; and from your long experience as a foreign inspirite, your bottled Wines and Liquors should meet with the same demand.*

We would recommend your to appoint some of the respectable spothecaries in different parts of the city as agents for the sale of your Brandies and Wines, where the profession can obtain the same when needed for medicinal purposes.

CHOICE COTTON SEED.

THE SUBSCRIBER, DAVID DICKSON, OF SPARTA, takes this method of informing the cotton planters of the South that he has made every arrangement for the sale and shipment of the DICKSON SELECT COTTON SEVED. He is in no way connected with David Dickson, of Oxford, Georgia, and has carefully selected this seed himself. The secd which has been twice selected, is offered at $2 per bushel. The same seel which has been carrfully selected for the last three years, is offered at $5 per bushel or five bushels for $20$, delivered at the do. of. In order to insure a safe delivery the following directions should be complied with: Write the name and postofile plainly; send the money by mail, taking a certificate from the Fostmaster, and if the money is lost the seed will be sent on the receipt of the certificate. To prevent frauds on plantors, no agents are employed, and all letters must be directed to DAVID DICKSON.
